The Redmen were robbed of a Dales. "It's a disgrace. That's 4 - 3 overtime victory over Bradford on Monday night, by the second hand on the time keeper's watch.

Bern, Draper, on a rush, sent the puck goalwards, but the bell rang before the little black disk bulged the Bradford twine. It was tough for Newmarket and! tough for Draper, whose sprinting attacks on the Bradford goal had high-lighted the last five minutes of play.

The game had barely got started, when Nesbitt, on the Bradford attack, flipped the puck over the body of Peters who had gone to the ice in a vain attempt to stop a score. Newmarket staged a big push and did everything but score. Then Roberts, slow in clearing from behind the Reds' network, was sent off for, delaying the game, and Bradford ganged four men up.

The first few minutes of the second session saw the Redmen II. Bovair Named As tie the score when May, backed by Townsley and Draper, rifled a shot between the posts. The picture changed again, however, when Hunt, McEwan, and Randle staged a wild rush on Peters that gave Bradford a 2 - 1 edge. Peat Hodgetts, May and Draper took turns in leading raids on the Bradford defence but the end of the period found the Redmen tired, with Roberts ragging the puck in centre ice.

Disaster threatened the Rec forces twice in this period, once when Draper slammed into the boards, and once when a Brad-

PAYING TOWN COUNCILLORS

Public Interest

The question of payment of members of the town council for their services seems to have been dropped for the present. The Canadian Statesman at Bowmanville suggests payment of that town's mayor, reeve, deputy-reeve and councillors $3 a meeting, with a limit of three meetings a month. Declaring that council work is becoming "more and more onerous," the Statesman says: "If it were just a matter of meeting once a month for a couple of hours we would be the last to suggest payment, but anyone who is familiar with council work will know that the two-hour session each month is about the least of the council's worries. Each member belongs to several committees who control the actual working departments and it is the committee work which demands so much time."

George James, the editor of the Statesman, speaks with the knowledge of a former mayor and without the prejudice of a present or prospective member of the council. The important question is not whether those who serve in town councils should be paid for their services, for there is everything to be said for free service to the community, but whether payment would enable those now serving the town to serve the town better or would enable or induce others not now serving the town and who have a worthwhile contribution to make to serve the town. In other words, would it pay the town to pay its councillors? Our own feeling has been that the town would gain nothing by paying its councillors, but the lack of competition for council seats worries us. Perhaps this will change as good times make themselves more felt and business men do not have to devote quite so much time to their own businesses.

TRIBUTE TO MR. BENNETT

While Mr. Bennett was prime minister I called upon other parties to be non-partisan their discussion of public policy. In other words, many of us thought, Mr. Bennett wants everyone to support him; when he is in power he doesn' like the party system. But now Mr. Bennett i in opposition and he has made the same appeal He asks the commons to give Mr. King reasonable support in his efforts to deal with the grea problems of the day. He asks members to avoid unfair criticism of the government. In at least two recent debates Mr. Bennett has upheld Mr King. One concerned social credit. In the other debate, answering Mr. Woodsworth's charge that Mr. King had constituted himself a "king-maker" by not consulting parliament about the abdication of Edward, Mr. Bennett said: "I would have acted exactly as Mr. King did."

Little To Disagree About

Mr. Bennett has not burt his own reputation at all by his friendliness toward Mr. King. As a matter of fact, the two parties have few if any fundamental differences of opinion. The King government is proving quite as conservative as the Bennett government. Business conditions are improving and, as a University of Toronto professor said here in Newmarket recently, Mr. King is "playing in his usual luck," Mr. King is in office during a period of improving trade, and he has probably accelerated this improvement by slightly lessening tariff restrictions.

Mr. Bennett Is Critical

It cannot be said against Mr. King that he promised anything which he is not giving, although there is truth in Mr. Bennett's charge in the course of the social credit debate that Mr. King did not contradict widespread pre-election statements that Mr. King was in sympathy with the monetary reformers and radicals. Calling the Tune

The truth is that governments are all much alike. The Ontario government is kicking over the traces a bit, just as an occasional newspaper kicks over the traces, but for the most part governments and newspapers eater to those on whose purses they are most dependent. The King government caters to the same people to whom the Bennett government catered. Much as fine humanitarians like Mr. Bennett and Mr. King would like to hold first the interests of farmers and fishermen, workingmen and poor men, they find the more well-to-do minority have more votes and that if they wish to serve their country as its prime minister they must pay more attention to the opinions and interests of financiers and industrialists.

Lauds Social Security

This article is intended to be about Mr. Bennett and we would conclude with some remarks of his concerning New Zealand, which he recently visited. Mr. Bennett says that New Zealand's social security program, including oldage pensions for all, the 40-hour week, state fire insurance, state life insurance (started when the government thought private companies charged too much), good banking facilities, governmentowned railways, dental and medical clinics, ranks New Zealanders "foremost among the peoples of the world." He also stated that the farmer puts; his reliance on co-operation.

FARM WAGES

Inequality of the wage carned by the farmer or his hired man and the wage earned in industry has been an important factor in lengthening the depression, according to J. E. Lattimer, professor of agricultural economics in Macdonald College, McGill University, writing in the Financial Times. Here is an article of more than ordinary interest to the intelligent farmer who would like to have a better understanding of his economic handleaps.

Farmer As Hired Man combined in one individual than the Canadian some other industries.

farmer," Prof. Lattimer inquires into "not only what wage the farmer pays his hired man but also what wage he pays his family and also what is perhaps more important, what wage he pays himself."

Farming In the City

If you are interested in learning why it is more profitable to "farm in the city" than in the country, just follow the more important extracts we have taken from Prof. Lattimer's article. While the wage figures given are for farm help, Prof. Lattimer implies that these figures give a fairly good idea of what the farmer and his family receive for their labor, aside from any return the farmer may or may not receive on his investment as a capitalist.

'In the decline in farm wages from 1930 to 1933 Canada led the world. Why? Well if there was any part of the world where farm prices suffered any more in comparison with other prices during the past seven years that information has i been kept secret.

"The reason farm wages have been low was that farm prices were low in comparison with other prices. Perhaps were a minimum wage for labor in farming adopted it might sooner or later raise prices of farm products. The difficulty encountered here is that so many farmers work only for themselves. I know of no regulations that can prevent anyone from exploiting the labor of themselves or that of their family.

"Wages of farm labor decline very little more than the value of the plant, that is, the value of the farm land. In 1923 the value of farm lands was estimated at exactly the same value per acre as in 1914. In 1929 it was the same figure. Yet from 1929 to 1933 the value per acre fell from $37 to $23 or by almost 38 per cent.

"It is not difficult to see reasons for the result Farming suffers in comparison with some urban industries on three main counts.

'I. Unfavorable position in regard to taxation.

"The farming business occupies a very vulner able position in regard to taxation for three main reasons:

(a) It is more difficult to hide a farm than a farm mortgage from the assessor,

(b) Tariff assistance is limited on account of ton writes: "Cannot part with Lawrence Cane attended a tea in disposing of so large a proportion of farm products The Era." on world markets.

(c) Inability to pass on the tax to the consumer-in periods of a buyers' market for farm products.

A Heavenly Note

We enjoyed the performance of Hansel and Gretel on Friday evening. One thing, however, puzzled us, corrugating our otherwise alabaster brow. It was in the scene where, Hansel and Gretel having fallen asleep in the woods a band of angels surrounded them to guard their slumber.

The angels were as attractive a group of young ladies as we ever hope to see, and halfway between the thought that heaven might not be so tiresome a place after all, and the resolve that we better start leading a changed life, there came the awful realization that a goodly number of the damsels (angels to you) were married. The wedding rings could be plainly seen from row "F".

The ice, which made roads so slippery last week, kept its hold for days. The trucks and cars made very slow progress, ever walking has been quite dangerous. Some reported that their car turned across the road and headed the opposite way. Many of the high school pupils were able to go to Sutton on their skates on the highway, which is quite unusual.

The days are lengthening both morning and evening, it is quite noticeable.

Kidney Acids

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss-lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills-for half a century the favorite remedy, 103

FUEL, CHANGES BRING DEFICIT

The United church annual meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 27, was well attended considering the difficult state of the roads. After a delightful supper, Dr. Duncan was elected chairman and W. T. Lloyd, secretary of the meeting.

Reports from the session indicated a membership of 303, an increase of 6 over last year. The stewards' report dealt with the recent improvements to the church property which, together with a heavy purchase of fuel, sufficient for two years, and other extra expenditures, had created a deficit of $275. It is hoped that this amount will soon be cleared off. Missions and maintenance raised $643 and the Women's Missionary society $301.

The Sunday-school reported an average attendance of 98 with 27 on the cradle roll. The Women's Association, after installing new windows in the church and helping renovate the lobby, and many other items of great use to the congregation, reported a balance of nearly $15 on hand.
